I used to help at BRLSI Science workshops

My daughter has amazing patience with her children (she didn't get it from me!) and this is a picture of her listening with full attention to her daughter

My oldest grandchild in the woods, loving life!

I'm all about relationships and the joy of connection

Who I am, in no particular order:

Feminist, Pacifist, Northern, Quaker, Non-Conformist, Mother, Grandmother, Sister, Truth-Seeker, Retired Teacher.

I have a passion for education/learning/development and social justice, all rooted in/founded on individual human relationships.

Connection is my strength and my weakness; I make connections between people and between ideas, finding patterns, beauty and order. I am easily overwhelmed by other people's emotions, sometimes I lose myself.

What I do, now I have retired from paid work:

- o Love my children and grandchildren and my friends
- o Learn, talk, listen, read, sing, dance, laugh
- o Drive a minibus for the MS Society, help children learn to read, join in with SingSong sessions in day centres, volunteer with a Restorative Justice project.

My daughter and grand daughter, in America, went to visit a friend who'd just had twins. The blissful feeling of holding a tiny baby shines out of their joyful faces!

My son is giving his niece his undivided attention.
