IDENTITY

Ngu Ntombovuyo wakwa Linda lo, uzolwa ngu Dlalmini noMamCirha. ooDuma Kude, Langa, Bhengu, Zizi Jama kaSjadu, Fakade. ooNcibane, Mhlant' enDlovu, Nojaholo, Ntswentswe, Nyembezana, Qhanqolo. NdingumNguni, (southern Nguni) oliMfengu.

I come from a working class family with a long history in the involvement of the political liberation of black people in South Africa. I am a daughter, mother, companion, comrade and friend.

SOCIAL LOCATION

As a young black woman living in South Africa I find my life constantly entangled in a particular set of racialized and gendered political, cultural, social and economic inferences.

WORK EXPERIENCE

I have more than more than five years of experience working in academic institutions and civil society organizations (CSOs). I have coordinated, managed, led and contributed to various research studies, public policy strategies as well as community engagement and development projects at different levels, from local to national scales.

Through my work, I intend to create a convening place for current and future leaders to come together and have forward-looking discussions on matters relevant to Africa and, particularly, to young people. I hope to help address the most crucial challenges to Africa 's development in the 21st Century; gain critical insight into the ideas of others by obtaining a multiplicity of perspectives and engage these at different levels; and develop and implement strategies relating to strengthening inspiration for social impact through civic innovation and community development.
